Office of the Health Department, City Hall, Richmond, Va., October 29, 1908.

In SPITE OF REPEATED GENERAL warnings from this department, it is believed that a number of owners of single cows are secretly selling their surplus milk to their neighbors in the city of Richmond, in violation of the ordinance which requires a permit from the Health Department before selling milk in Richmond.

All the regular milk dealers have such permits, and their places are under rigid inspections.

Notice is hereby given to all owners of cows that it is unlawful to sell milk in Richmond without a permit from the Health Department, and after November 1, 1908, all persons found so doing will be prosecuted without further notice. The first fine prescribed by law is not less than five nor more than fifty dollars for the first offense, while for the second offense the fine is one hundred dollars.

Notice is further given to the public that milk from unlicensed and uninspected places is regarded by this department as frequently dangerous, and always inferior to the milk sold by illensed producers and dairies.
